Corporate and Restaurant Golf Leagues

From the workplace to the golf course ... for people who like to play!

Meeting today's business challenges requires focus, concentration, motivation and teamwork. These skills are also necessary when playing a round of golf.

Successful businesses have long appreciated the culture surrounding the game, which is why the Metropolitan Golf League is expanding its 2011 restaurant division to include a corporate division in Westchester County and the New York tri-state area. The group is extending an invitation to business and restaurant owners to join them for their Annual Spring Golf Scramble on April 13 at the Patriot Hills Golf Club in Stony Point (pre-registration is required, please see ysaleagues.com for additional information). The scrambles, held in the spring and fall, provide an opportunity to play on some of the area's finest golf courses while supporting the Piermont P.A.L. Junior Golf Club and the M.G.A. Foundation, respectively.

League play requires regular exercise, which can reduce stress and improve fitness levels. The golf league also offers the opportunity for business owners to network and make new contacts, while continuing to improve their game.

Appealing to all levels of golfers, Metropolitan Golf League's handicap system has been proven to work. "After only three seasons, and with a high handicap, I teamed up with Marty Markoe of Emicrophone to win the league championship in 2009," says Al Morales, president of Yorkville Sports. The 2010 title was awarded to the Park Steakhouse. The 2011 title was awarded to Randy Carson and John Halligan, owners of the Park Steakhouse.

"Corporate golf leagues are a great way to build relationships," Mr. Morales, continues, "and of course, good sportsmanship builds trust and respect among the management team and potential new business partners."

Yorkville Sports Association (YSA) and Metropolitan Golf League (MGL) organize the teams and manage all of the details of the league. Scheduled league play is weekly and bi-weekly at top tri-state courses from April through August. Play-off and championship rounds are held at the end of the season.

2011 Golf League matches will be held at the following challenging courses:

Philip J. Rotella Golf Course (Thiells, NY), Garrison Golf Club (Garrison, NY), Patriot Hills Golf Course (Stony Point, NY), Spook Rock Golf Course (Suffern, NY), Blue Hill Golf Course (Pearl River, NY), Hollow Brook Golf Club (Cortlandt, NY), Richter Park Golf Course (Danbury, NY), Architects Golf Club (Phillipsburg, NJ) and Montauk Downs (Montauk, NY).

For over 30 years, Yorkville Sports has been organizing corporate sporting events for many of the leading Fortune 500 companies in the metropolitan area.
